FIELDER POLICIES TO GET UNITED SUPPORT

Governor-elect Certain of Harmonious Majority in Legislature.

Members to Consider Plans.

TRENTON, Nov. 29 .- With a substantial majority to carry out their ideas, the Democrats of the 1914 session of the Legislature of New Jersey intend to strengthen the present laws rather than give the State new statutes.

Governor-elect James F. Fielder, State leader of the party, will have entirely harmonious support in the Legislature. He has succeeded in the election of him-self and some of the members of the Legislature in spite of opposition, which for a time promised to be at least trouble-some. The result has been that even those Democrats of the House who were Taxation will also be given attention.

It is the general belief that the State

Democrats make at their coming caucus, the Republicans are in a position to demand consideration. The Republicans have a good working force. They will demand publicity for their ideas, with the possible result that some of the legislation will have to be changed to meet their demands. They plan another grade crossing bill, changes in the election laws, tax reform bills, the abolition of State boards and departments and many other vital propositions.

Darheen is known, Mr. Young says, in various parts of tropical America as malanga, eddo, coco, taya and tanier, and belongs to the genus colocasia.

The dasheen stalks grow to a height of four to six feet. It has shield shaped leaves, not unlike elephants' ears. Each hill of dasheens contains one or two large spherical corms, growing to five pounds in weight, around which are developed numerous tubers. Both comms and tubers are similar to the potato in composition, but contain less water.
